URUGUAY, FORESTRY AND LOGISTICS HUB

A strongly rooted industry with a view to the future

Occupying a privileged location in Latin America, Uruguay is situated on the Rio de la Plata Estuary, with the Atlantic to its south-east.

The country has port terminals dedicated to forestry and agricultural products, as well as to shipping containers. Its system of free ports and customs-free zones operates as ports of entry for goods that are distributed throughout the entire region. This logistical advantage facilitates international trade and makes Uruguay a service hub for the region's thriving forestry industry.

Forestry industry

Uruguay has more than one million hectares planted with eucalyptus and pine for industrial use, and harvests more than fourteen million m³ per year. The wood is supplied to cellulose plants, plywood and chipboard factories, saw mills, tissue plants, paper mills and biomass energy generators. Its forestry industry generates some two billion dollars annually.

Prospects for the installation of a new cellulose plant, the greatest economic investment in the country's history, point towards sustained growth of the forestry industry into the future.

Forestry region

Thirty years of forestry development have placed Uruguay, together with Brazil and Chile, among a select group of Latin American countries with the highest growth in the cellulose industry at the global level. At present, Brazil is the world's top exporter of cellulose, with Chile in fourth place and Uruguay in the number eight position. In the coming years, Argentina and Paraguay will also head towards integration in the modern forestry industry.

These prospects for the future are the reason for holding an International Fair that will help to foster new alliances, explore business opportunities and develop regional logistics projects. In addition, it offers multinational companies a chance to connect with the region, and solutions for suppliers in satisfying the demand for goods and services.

FIRST INTERNATIONAL FORESTRY FAIR

Strengthening regional growth

The present and future of the forestry industry can be found at Punta Forest. A field of opportunities for harvesting good business.

PUNTA DEL ESTE, A place to enjoy, naturally

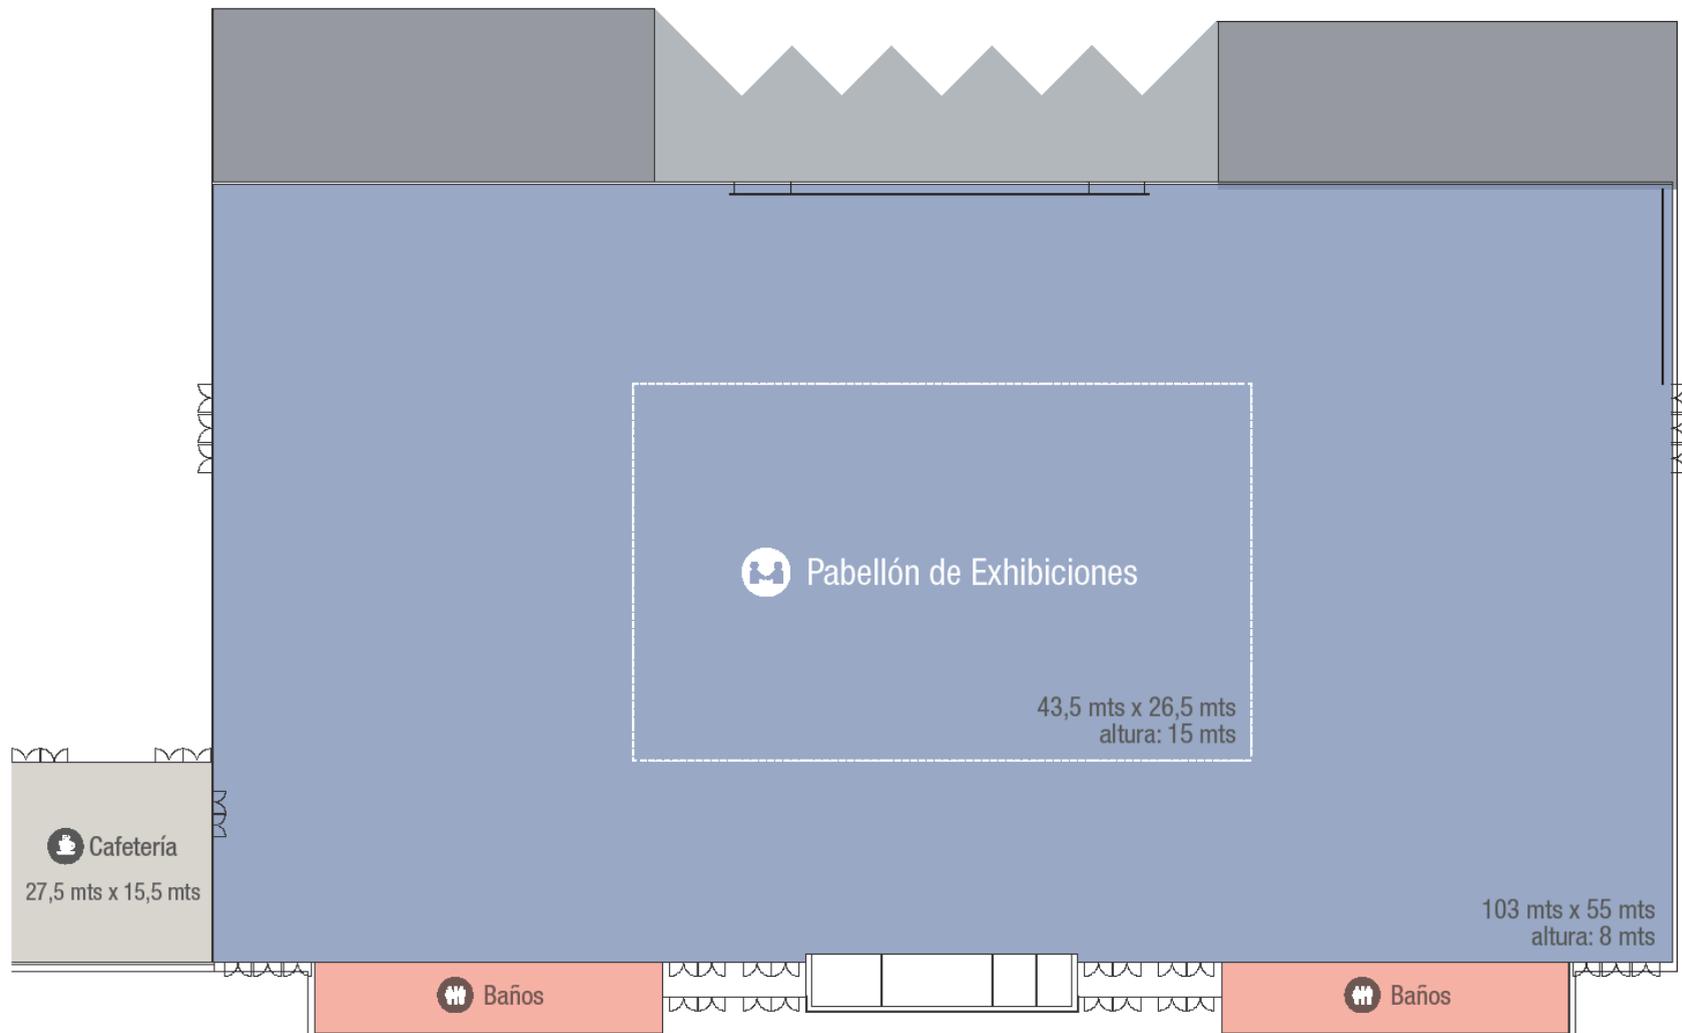

Known for its beauty and natural surroundings, Punta del Este is one of the principal tourist destinations of South America. Its infrastructure, hotels and restaurants, in addition to its excellent quality of life, make it one of the best places to meet other professionals and do business. A friendly city that welcomes visitors from all over the world.

A UNIQUE CONVENTION CENTER FOR A UNIQUE INTERNATIONAL FAIR

The recently established Punta del Este Convention and Exhibition Center is the ideal setting for Punta Forest, the first International Forest Industry Fair in Uruguay. A thirty million dollar investment has produced outstanding venues, parking, gardens and infrastructure - all made to order for today's international events. The Center is located in the Jagüel area, very close to the airport and with direct access to La Barra, the Peninsula, Maldonado City and San Carlos.

Its seven convention halls measuring 8,000 m² connecting to a 6,700 m² exhibition pavilion, an outdoor area of 60,000 m² and parking for 600 vehicles all allow for safely and comfortably hosting more than 5,000 visiting forestry sector professionals from all over the world.

25 YEARS IN THE FOREST INDUSTRY

The Punta Forest fair is organized by Siglo Comunicación, a company working in the thriving national forestry sector for a quarter century, from the first attempts at automated planting, through the construction of the country's first private port in M'Bopicuá, to the building of the sector's most modern industrial plants.

Siglo Comunicación's goal in holding the Punta Forest fair is to provide a regional launching platform for the forest industry. Sustainable development requires business actions that focus on the social, environmental, technical, commercial and logistical challenges of the coming years.

We look forward to seeing you at Punta Forest.
Together we can make it better.
